Travel to Worcester

Worcestershire's location in the heart of England makes it supremely accessible and closer than you think. If you are flying into the area, then Birmingham International Airport is approximately 40 minutes away, Manchester is 2h, Heathrow is 2h 10 and Gatwick is 2h 50 away.

From Birmingham International Airport:

Birmingham International airport is approximately 1.5 hours by train to Worcester. The easiest and cheapest route to take is a direct train from the airport to Birmingham New Street. From here there is a regular service to Hereford, which calls at Worcester stations.

The train will usually depart from platform 12 at Birmingham New Street, and takes around 50 minutes to get to Worcester stations.

The closest train station to the university is Worcester Foregate Street. From here a taxi can take you to the University of Worcester

Arena. University of Worcester Arena, Hylton Road, Worcester WR2 5JN The taxi ride should take you approximately 10 minutes and it should cost around £7-£9 pounds. If arriving by train and you have the time, the walk from Worcester Foregate Street station to the arena takes approximately 25 to 30 minutes.
